ABSTRACT

This is an extensive interdisciplinary bibliography of environmentally-related resources from the shelves of the James P. Adams Library at Rhode Island College. It is noted that the list is selective rather than comprehensive, and that the regional (United States, New England, or Rhode Island) has been emphasized when possible. The bibliography includes dictionaries, handbooks, directories, encyclopedias, bibliographies, statistics, atlases, journals, and indexes. Citations are presented under the following headings: (1) Conservation; (2) Ecology; (3) Environmental Policy and Planning; (4) Pollution; (5) Environmental Education; and (6) Government Publications. Library of Congress Classification call numbers are included for citations other than government publications, which are given SuDocs (Superintendent of Documents) call numbers. Two appendixes provide lists of the library's environmental and ecological science periodicals and its periodical indexes. (MAB)

INTRODUCTION

This bibliography is an offering from the James P. Adams Library in celebration of the twentieth anniversary of Earth Day. We hope it will be useful to faculty planning to include environmental issues in their courses and to students doing research on environmental topics. It is a resource for reading, thinking, and talking about the natural world and our place in it.

The books and documents listed here were on the library's shelves as of December 1, 1989. Call numbers are included with the citations. However, since the library continues to collect materials in this area, items acquired later by the library will not be listed.

Our list is selective rather than comprehensive. When possible, we have emphasized the regional: items dealing with the U.S., New England, or Rhode Island. We have excluded materials that seemed too narrow in focus or too polemical in tone to be useful to a wide audience. We have tried to choose items that are neither primarily technical nor intended for specialists. Both by accident and by design, this bibliography reflects the interdisciplinary nature of environmental studies.
